intercourse with a government which repudiated these principles. Steps then would be taken to inform Americans of the dangers to which they were exposed as a result of this action, such measures as necessary adopted to safeguard the lives and interests of citizens of the United States, should Germany accept the principle in a way that would constitute a guarantee for the future, the American government would entertain the demand for "strict accountability" for violations of this principle and the killing of Americans on the Lusitania.

The decision to base the American note on the principle of international law to obtain an affirmative or negative reply, and not enter into a technical discussion of details raised in the German communication, was the single development of the cabinet council.

Some members favored even excluding any reference to the facts asked for by Germany, settling first the point as to whether or not the German action was a violation of the American war of last February that it would insist upon the exercise of the right of visit and search with respect to vessels on which Americans were traveling.

DELAY OPPOSED BY CABINET.

One cabinet officer believed the American government should enter into an investigation of the points raised by the German answer, submitting its proof and giving the German government an opportunity to do likewise. Others, however, declared that such a process would mean only delay and in the event of a decision on facts, would leave the United States which had already assured itself of the authenticity of its information and whose good faith was at stake, without remedy for the present or future attacks on American vessels having hearts 5 for 1.

been committed, notwithstanding assurance to the contrary. The German ambassador, who was in the United States, was general that the United States would not be a party to the German action, and that the American government would not be a party to the German action, and that the American government would not be a party to the German action.

KAISER'S AGENT MAY SUGGEST.

In some diplomatic quarters close to the German embassy, it was said tonight that the ambassador would seek to elicit from President Wilson his views on how Germany could conduct her submarine warfare without interfering with neutral trade, and might suggest the separation of passenger and contraband traffic or the giving of assurances that the British government would not arm its merchantmen with torpedoes.

None of these reported proposals, officials conversant with the position of the government indicated, would be considered until a definite acquiescence by Germany in the fundamental principle of international law was obtained.

Today's cabinet meeting indicated that the government did not intend to yield to the rights which would be asserted by Germany, and that it would stand firm in its position as outlined in previous notes.

The cabinet divided two and a half hours in discussion of the German note, and the cabinet decided to issue a statement showing calmness and no sign of strain. As the cabinet assembled in the executive offices, individual members by their attitude reflected the gravity of the situation.

No announcements were made after the meeting adjourned.

NO GUNS CARRIED BY THE LUSITANIA.

Officials reiterated today that the United States had absolute proof that the Lusitania carried no guns, and that the details of an investigation made by the British government before the Lusitania sailed, the assurance that the ship was carrying no guns or arms, and that the ship was carrying no guns or arms, and that the ship was carrying no guns or arms.

It became known tonight that when the note was first drafted it pointed out that the ship was carrying no guns or arms, and that the ship was carrying no guns or arms, and that the ship was carrying no guns or arms.

One of the suggestions made in official quarters today was that Germany should be asked to state the status of the British merchantmen leaving the United States, and that the British government should be asked to state the status of the British merchantmen leaving the United States.

OUTBOUND VESSELS EXAMINED FOR GUNS.

Early in the war, it was explained at the state department, instructions were sent to the collector of customs at the port of New York to examine the outgoing vessels for arms, and that the ship was carrying no guns or arms, and that the ship was carrying no guns or arms.

In one case at New Orleans recently when a ship was refused clearance until it had been examined by American officials for arms, and that the ship was carrying no guns or arms, and that the ship was carrying no guns or arms.

STATE NORMAL SCHOOL GRADUATES 70 TONIGHT

Annual Literary Address Will Be Delivered by Rev. Ashby Jones.

Athens, Ga., June 1.—(Special).—Concluding its twenty-first year of service for the state in training teachers for the common schools and the public school systems, and having this year teacher-students from about half a dozen counties in the state on the roll of matriculates, the State Normal school will present seventy graduates to the state Wednesday evening.

The interest in date and the various recitals and entertainments have marked a high standard of work. The annual baccalaureate sermon was preached by Rev. R. A. Webb, D. D., of Louisville, Ky., on the subject, "The Bible Not a Book of Fables."

The evening service Sunday was a most unusual one, the last vesper of the Young Women's Christian association, the address being made by Dr. Webb.

Let's Get Down to "Brass Tacks"

Let's be honest with one another.

Some people believe one thing—some another.

In every momentous—every interesting—question that comes before the people, there are many different opinions.

It was "Puddin' Head Wilson," we believe, who said that it "was differences of opinions that made horse-racing good."

It is contended—and perhaps rightly so—that there is always two sides to every question.

The only exception to this rule—at least what ought to be an exception—is the question of—Patronizing home industry.

If you are loyal to your home community—if you believe that you ought to help those who help you—if you want to see conditions improved at home, see more men and women put to work—if you want to "see the color" of your money again after you have handed it over for the many necessities of life—in other words, if you are a home-loving, patriotic, stand-by-your-community sort of a consumer—

Then you will call for goods made here at home.

When you do this, you not only get as good—or better—articles than goods bearing an imported label, but you show your pride in and loyalty to the manufacturers here at home who are aiding in a large way to make our southland commercially strong.

If you agree with us that there is but one side to the patronize-home-industry question—and that side is to PATRONIZE it—then show your faith by your works.

The manufacturers below are home people. They employ home people. Their goods are sold by your retailer.

Call for the brands mentioned—

And be a good, loyal, dyed-in-the-wool, home-loving, home-consuming, patriotic sort of a consumer, who delights in the prosperity of his own community first, last and all the time.

Committee to Meet

To Work Out Plans

For Big High School

The first meeting of the special committee from general council and the board of education to work out details for a consolidated high school will be held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of Mr. Ashley, chairman, Alderman Jesse W. Armistead and J. Lee Barnes. Representing the board of education are James L. Kay, chairman; Dan W. Green and Aldine Chambers.

Councilman Ashley took the first step toward consolidating the four city high schools, where he introduced in general council a resolution providing for a special committee to work in conjunction with a similar committee from the board of education.

He contends that the operation of one big central school, on the academy plan, would mean less maintenance expense than is attached to the aggregate to the four schools as now operated; that it would be an opening toward the establishment of a number of important new departments not practical under the present regime; and that it would in a measure solve the problem of housing the constantly increasing number of pupils in the high school department.

"If we could just get the matter before the people, I am sure the large majority would favor the plan," said Mr. Ashley Tuesday. "I have had hundreds of school patrons in all parts of the city comment the idea and offer their aid in carrying it to success. Several members of the board of education have also expressed themselves as favoring the plan."

BANKER GIVEN 5 YEARS.

Assistant Cashier McQueen, of Lyons, Pleads Guilty.

Savannah, Ga. June 1.—(Special.)—Henry McQueen, former assistant cashier of the First National Bank of Lyons, indicted on a charge of defrauding the institution out of $1,000 by making false entries, entered a plea of guilty in the United States court after having previously pleaded not guilty.

Colonel Robert L. Golding made a strong plea to Judge Lambdin for mercy. McQueen was sentenced to serve five years in the penitentiary. He was brought across the continent a few days ago after his arrest in Los Angeles, Cal., where he was spent two years there. He has been out on bond since his return to Georgia.
